Like it or hate it, the Shard – Europe’s tallest building – has changed the London skyline forever

Last July, London’s (1) .....skyscraper was officially completed. The skyscraper is called the Shard and it cost about £430 million to build. At a height of almost 310 metres, it is the tallest building in Europe. The Shard is so tall (2) .....other great monuments like St Paul’s Cathedral and Tower Bridge look small (3) ..... comparison. The Shard has completely changed the appearance of London. However, not everyone thinks that it is a change for the better.

The Shard was (4) ..... by the famous Italian architect Renzo Piano. When he began designing the Shard, Piano wanted a very tall building that looked (5) ..... a spire. The sides of the building aren’t regular, so the building has an unusual shape. It looks like a broken splinter of glass (or shard). That is how the building got its name: the Shard. Piano understood that it was a risk to build such an unusual building, (6) ..... shape reminds him of the spires of the churches of London and of the tall masts of the ships that were once (7) .....the river Thames.

The Shard has 87 floors. At the top, there is an observatory which is open (8) ..... the public. At the moment the building is empty, but eventually there will be a luxury 5-star hotel, top quality restaurants, luxury apartments, a spa and offices.

Local residents didn’t want the building, but the plans were approved and, in 2009, building work began. A lot of people were still unhappy about the Shard. Critics said that such a tall skyscraper might be good in a city like New York, but it would not (9) ..... good in London.

The Shard, the splinter of glass, now dominates the London skyline. It is not certain, however, that ordinary London citizens will (10) ..... accept it as a valuable addition to the city.
