Edinburgh Summer Festivals

The capital city of Scotland is famous for (1) summer festivals. There are twelve festivals throughout the year, half of which are celebrated during the months of July and August. Hundreds of thousands of people visit the Scottish capital during the summer. Here are some of the events they can enjoy.

The Edinburgh International Festival is the original Edinburgh festival, (2) began in 1947. Actors, musicians, dancers and opera singers from all (3) the world perform to huge audiences. You need tickets for most events which take (4) in theatres around the city.

The Edinburgh Art Festival is modern and has been celebrated for around ten years. It is a fantastic opportunity (5) some of the city's best visual art in art galleries and museums. Most events are free.

The Edinburgh Festival Fringe. This is the (6) arts festival in the world with thousands of shows across the city. Anyone can perform in the festival and over 20,000 artists take part, so there is always a huge variety of acts to choose from. Go to the Royal Mile, one of Edinburgh's main streets, to watch performers such (7) magicians, acrobats and comedians for free! However, it (8) get very busy as thousands of tourists and local people fill the city streets to enjoy the shows.

The Edinburgh International Book Festival. The largest book festival in the world (9) in 1983 and takes place every year in Charlotte Square Gardens. There are over 700 events for children and adults who love books. You can meet many authors, talk to them, ask them to sign a book or listen to them talk about their stories. Children can listen to stories and watch illustrators draw pictures of the stories.

The Royal Edinburgh Military Tattoo. This show is 65 years old. Every evening outside Edinburgh Castle you can listen to pipers and drummers in military bands, watch traditional Scottish dancing and enjoy a firework display. More than 200,000 people buy tickets to watch the show live (10) around 100 million people watch it on TV.
